Because

Our mission includes research, outreach, and serving the public good.

Bottles of seeds collected a century ago are a symbol of our history as a land grant institution. The University of Minnesota celebrates its legacy as the original land grant university and its public mission established by the Morrill Act of 1862.

Still driven to provide access to higher education, the Crookston campus offers 26 bachelor’s degree programs, 18 minors, and 36 concentrations, including 10 online degrees, in the areas of agriculture and natural resources; business; liberal arts and education; and math, science, and technology.
