Business students and members of the faculty are involved in research that can predict and affect the future of businesses in our country and around the world. Economic impact, organizational assessments, and marketing strategies are just a few of the topics students are investigating in the classroom or as part of an internship as a business major.