When undergraduates do research, they have the power to shape their fields of study. That’s why our students work side-by-side with leading professors in the sciences, natural resources and software engineering. Our students not only grow into professionals—they push us forward. It’s one more way the future is being Made in Minnesota.